Dear sir:

Accept this letter as confirmation your correspondence, dated August 16, 2019, was received.

I bought my property and set up residence in the latter part of 2015, thus I've no knowledge of activities of the property in question before that date. The small amount of movement I've witnessed is redundant and has never been a problem.

However, should the new owner/operator consider a substantial growth in their business, I do certainly have concerns.

1. Quality and quantity of water currently enjoyed, to be continued and maintained by an aquifer unfettered by extreme usage;
2. Dust and extreme traffic endured by close proximity to such an extensive operation;
3. Noise and auditory unpleasantness, as well as odor from such an operation;

4. The deterioration of my property value because of previously stated circumstances of such an intensive livestock facility.

I've no desire to thwart business enterprise, and indeed applaud the entrepreneurial endeavour; however, I chose this property for the rural peace and quiet of this close community.

Sincerely

Clayton Olson
