Hi Andy,
Wishing you all the best in the New Year!

Thanks for the information!

The main reason I sent out that last email was just to make sure that you are not expecting additional info from me, and haven't received it. Just making sure I have the bases covered on my end.

In other words, i don't want to see the permit declined because I did not give you information or such you asked me to give.

Thanks
Arie

Hello Arie,

Happy New Year.

I have the information you sent to me and, as previously discussed, I am busy with the decision on your application. As part of our process all decisions are reviewed internally, to enhance consistency, clarity, and minimize the potential for errors, before they are issued. This review will take place after the Christmas break. I am hoping to be able to issue the decision shortly after the review has been completed.

When we issue a decision we make sure that the applicant receives their copy before it is sent to any other parties/referral agencies or made public. I will therefore be in contact with you when the decision is ready to be issued.

Andy

Hi Andy,
At our last in-person meeting which happened early November, you had asked if I could send some additional information to you; you requested the soil testing report, the map indicating where the core samples were taken in the weaning shelter and corrals, as well as asking if I wanted to make some changes to the report from John Lobbezoo.

I have given you the soil report, and John Lobbezoo has revised his report and added the mapping of where the core samples were taken.

Is there any other information or data that I might have missed sending in, or that is not complete yet, that you still need to support your decision?

Im just sending you this email just to make sure that I haven't missed anything or that you are still waiting for any additional data from me.

Thank you for your time,

Arie Muilwijk
